Dear Dr. Boden

Professor Neil Donald Sargison
University of Edinburgh
Royal (Dick) School of Veterinary Studies

agreeing on the lower mark, this could create grounds for appeal.

Other Comments - Research Project:

The key elements of the projects are: the study design; data collection; analysis of the results; and discussion of the outcomes. In most cases this encompasses clinical, management, epidemiological and statistical skills. It is therefore perhaps unfortunate to have both examiners with similar areas of expertise, for example in epidemiology. The risk is that this does not allow the candidates to excel in other areas.
